

Forever Would I Choose

Forever would I choose these words to say:
May left and right unite within me now.
And even more: The wonder is the way the gap is bridged. With no man's tourniquet, colossal musings interlock somehow forever. Would I choose these words to say what I don't truly feel or think today?

Not when amazement is upon my brow
and even more, the wonder is. The way the interneurons pulse and interplay unlocks the truth -- the yin and yang of Tao.

Forever would I choose these words. To say that I could ever understand the gray, (that matter that my heart should disavow)

and even more, the wonder! Is the way

I feel about a thing bound to betray the way I think? Not if I don't allow!
Forever would I choose these words to say,
and even more: The wonder is the way.
