A promotional poster for the Harpers Hall Ensemble Concert. The background is split into a blue left half and a green right half. The title 'Harpers Hall' is written in a large, golden, cursive font across the top. On the left, there is a golden harp icon with the letters 'H' and 'B' on it. In the center, a photograph shows the ensemble performing in a church setting. On the right, white text provides details: 'Lighted Window Presents a Harpers Hall Concert October 12, 2019 @7:30pm Tickets: $10 advance $15 at door'.

Harpers Hall makes its home in the San Francisco South Bay Area and Central California Coast. Their purpose is to promote an appreciation of the folk harp, to cultivate its living musical tradition, and to preserve the fun and magic of the harp for members and for the general public. Their members range from beginning harp players to professional musicians. They hold monthly gatherings at members' homes or other locations during which we conduct mini-workshops, practice repertoire, share music with each other, and snack on treats that we bring to share. In addition to these regular get-togethers, they perform for festivals, host workshops and house concerts featuring traveling harpists, and hold annual harp retreats. For more information, visit <http://www.harpershall.com>.

The Harpers Hall Ensemble performs at the Scottish Games, and in concert at St. Joseph's Cathedral in their Season of Hope concert series, as well as other concert series. Concerts include music by the ensemble plus featured soloists from the ensemble, with introductions to each song that give insight into the music and the instruments. At the end of each concert they offer an opportunity for the public attending the concert to get a closer look at the harps, ask questions, and even have their first experience playing a harp!
